TO UNITE IN CHURCH WORKSupper For All the Brotherhoods in the City.

A supper to which all the men of the churches of Columbia are invited, will be given at the Virginia Grill at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening. The supper is to promote a union of the brotherhoods of the churches. There will be discussions as to how the brotherhoods, by united action, may make Columbia a better place in which to live and to create interest in the work of the church.

Last Monday evening delegates from the churches met and elected a committee to form plans for the union. Dr. Woodson Moss was elected chairman of the committee. He has named Thursday evening as the time for a supper which was planned as the best way to get the men of the churches together for forming the union. There will be a charge of fifty cents a plate.

At present the Methodist is the only church which has an organized brotherhood. Some of the others have had brotherhoods but have allowed them to die out. All of the churches are planning to reorganize their brotherhoods and affiliate with the union.

COLUMBIA IN NATIONAL WEEKLYSaturday Evening Post Contains Story "Languid Southern Town."

In the Saturday Evening Post last week there was a story by Madge Radford Warren Brown of Columbia entitled "The Wrong Side of the Counter." The story gives the experiences of a Chicago girl who had tried to marry and failed, was forced to become a shopgirl, but tired of the dreary life behind the counter and came to Columbia, bought a twenty-two-acre farm and became a market gardener.

Some extracts from the story regarding Columbia and the shopgirl's experience follow:

"The people, as human beings, were nice, with that touch of Southern languor that is all right until it interferes with progress—and it certainly did there. From the business side those people made me see red. You'd call up an expressman to come at a certain hour, and maybe he'd be three hours late—and maybe he wouldn't come at all! The trains were never on time, so it didn't seem to the expressman to matter about the delivery of trunks. The town of twelve thousand people half supported about twenty-two little groceries and meat markets, and you couldn't depend on any of them! Housekeepers kept changing from one to the other and something was always wrong. They'd deliver things to the wrong house or not deliver at all, or send you more than you'd asked for, or else what you hadn't asked for. No firm seemed to fear competition from any other. I guess they counted on that touch of languor. Prices for almost everything were much higher than in Chicago. On every side I saw chances for prosperity thrown away. Though the farming land was good, the grocers actually had to send to St. Louis for fruit and vegetables, and at that they came in only twice a week. If I am any judge they were usually about three days old when they arrived."

In regard to her farm and the marketing of her vegetables, the shopgirl said:

"The way from town was over a road pretty bad in places—a Missouri road; but it led past very nice bits of landscape."

"Upon my radishes I came out just ten dollars ahead, after the seeds and so on were paid for. I was ignorant of one phase of my market—the Columbia people didn't care much for radishes. On the green onions I made only fifty dollars—that was because I didn't thin them out sufficiently and transplant them enough; and, besides, I didn't know that my patrons didn't care much more for green onions than for radishes."

BIBLE CLASSES WILL UNITEPlans Made to Have 1,000 Students Associated in Study Next Year.

A coordinated and strengthened study of the Bible by 1,000 students of the various institutions which have Bible study in Columbia is planned for opening of the next school year. The movement began yesterday when a committee composed of President J. M. Wood, Mrs. J. G. Babb, Miss Anna Mae Stokley, Mrs. D. H. Doane and J. S. Moore met at the home of Mrs. W. W. Charters.

"Heretofore there has been various places where the Bible was studied," said a member of the committee this morning, "among them being the Sunday Schools, the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A., the Bible College and the girls' schools. There has been probably 600 students in the work but it has been independent and unorganized."

The plan is to organize a large Bible study committee made up of representatives of the various interests, to select the courses, the teachers and the text books and do a certain amount of enrolling this spring so that in the fall the work will be ready to start off. As many of the teachers as possible are to take courses in the Bible College for preparation.

Another meeting will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Building, including the Sunday School superintendents, ministers, representatives of the Bible College, of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., and of the colleges.
